About

Aerial_Wind was a builder from Metro City in the first Era of Civilization. While not particularly talented in the ways of building complex, nice-looking structures, he was the main player in charge of erecting the walls around Metro City and was the inventor of the wall's 'anti-spider' innovations involving placing two layers of stone brick walls and one layer of full blocks atop a pre-existing wall.

History

Aerial_Wind spawned in the vast tundras of Era 1 before soon forming an alliance with Serene_Petal. Roughly an hour and a half into session 1, Hazy_Sunset would also join the squad. The three would travel together, eventually landing in a Cherry Blossom Biome. Towards the end of Session 1, Hazy_Sunset would find what is now known Metro City.

In session 2, the three players would travel to and settle down in Metro City. It was then that Aerial_Wind began to gain Builder experience, crafting and placing copius amounts of stone bricks to secure the Metro City Territory from mobs. Prior to this he was classless, frequently death resetting to save on resources. After this point, Aerial would not die again until the last 5 minutes of Session 20 where he would be knocked off a Helicopter to his death by a phantom whilst screenshots were being taken of the group.

Aerial's would spend most sessions was to crafting and placing stone bricks for the underground layer and walls. Outside of this, his main building contributions were the city gates, tourist accomodation and assisting with the making of the civilization's storage location alongside Serene_Petal.

In session 16, he attended the wedding at the Stairway to Heaven Cathedral. After the ceremony he began getting attacked by an invisible force who was later found out to be Lazy_Creature. He continued to be pestered relentlessly by Lazy to the point where his armor and shield broke. Out of frustration, he logged off amidst the combat timer leading some players to believe he had died. A conflict ticket was filed against Lazy_Creature but was ultimately denied (BOO!). Lazy would eventually stop, but tensions between the two players persisted.
